STUDENT COUNCILS OF NORTHWESTERN PENNSYLVANIA ORGANIZE

The Student Councils of Northwestern Pennsylvania organized into a district organization, April 10, 1951, at Meadville High School. One hundred and eight students attended the conference, representing over 20 schools. The day was divided into three sessions. District Attorney Raymond Shafer, the main speaker, emphasized student government as being an excellent way to learn the student's role as a future citizen. Paul Landis, executive secretary of State Student Council Association, talked of membership in the state association and of the coming state convention at Kittanning. The Meadville High School Band and Mixed Ensemble furnished entertainment.

Following a lunch in the gym, served by the home economics department, the delegates divided into groups for discussion of student council problems. At the same time the sponsors were organizing the Northwestern organization. Entertainment and a dance followed the afternoon sessions.

A dinner was served at the Presbyterian Church to start the evening meeting. Reports of the afternoon discussion groups were read. Franklin is next year's convention city and was consequently named the president of the new organization. Meadville elected the vice-president and Warren, secretary.

William Reid was general Chairman in charge of the conference.

Gentlemen prefer comfort!

THE SIGNALS are rapidly changing for men's wear. The new rules of American living call for clothing that is casual, colorful and comfortable.

And to more and more males that means wearing slacks, sport shirts and leisure jackets more hours of the day at both work and play.

What caused this swing to informality? Many factors are responsible—but you can credit rayon with a big assist. For the popularity of this type of clothing is built on new ideas in fabric construction. Of course, this is where rayon shines! This fiber being man-made can be adapted . . . made to fit special needs.

As a result, textile makers working with Avisco engineers have come up with a wide range of rayon materials distinguished by subtle colors, washability or cleanability, long wear and resistance to perspiration.

You probably own sportswear tailored from rayon right now. And you'll want to check up on the new and even better-looking numbers now available. American Viscose Corporation, Meadville, Pennsylvania.

THEY TROD A ROCKY ROAD TO SUCCESS WITH A NEW IDEA FOR A CLOSURE

Colonel Lewis Walker wore them, back in the 1890's, and they took an awful beating before the slide fastener was finally perfected. For more than 20 years the Colonel struggled with production problems, sought to interest reluctant investors, and sold his radical fastener to skeptical customers.

In 1906 he was joined by Dr. Gideon Sundback, who developed the present interlocking "scoop" type of zipper and production machinery for making it. About 1914 the little company began to show an occasional profit, but all the earnings were put back into the business, and it was not until 1923 that investors began to receive a return on money that brought the needed machinery. Profit is important to everybody, for only the company that makes a profit can buy the better machinery, equipment and facilities employees need to meet and beat the competition of other people making a similar product.
